CALDER DEFINES CAMPAIGN ISSUES

First Republican Rally of Campaign Draws Good Crowd at Ellenville Where Candidate for Senator is Principal Speaker---Enthusiasm Shown for Hughes and Entire Ticket.

An enthusiastic Republican rally was held at Norbury Hall at Ellenville Monday night which was addressed by William M. Calder, candidate for United States Senator; The Hon. Charles E. Nichols of Schoharie county, Republican candidate for Justice of the Supreme court; Senator Charles W. Walton of this city and Senator Ogden L. Mills of New York city.

Justice Cleon B. Murray presided at the meeting and introduced the speakers. Mr. Calder spoke first and discussed national issues and the absolut despotism displayed in the control of the House of Representatives by the southern group of congressmen, whose pork barrel activities have disgraced the entire Wilson administration.

Mr. Nichols did not refer to the political issues of the campaign, but after his introduction to the audience spoke briefly on the inconvenience which had been occasioned to lawyers and litigants for many years throught the absence of a justice of the supreme court between Binghamton and Albany.

Senator Walton discussed conditions in the state as they existed when the state became Republican two years ago, and the various changes that had been brought about during the two years' legislative session. If the people desire the constructive policy of the Republican party to continue and the state to make progress instead of falling back into the old ways, there is the utmost necessity of continuing in office not only the state administration but the legislature as well, without whose co-operation no constructive policy can be enacted.

Amplifying these statements, Senator Walton explained among other things the support which the administration had given to the department of foods and markets; the payment of the debts which were due and owing to the farmers of the state for slaughtered cattle, the payment of contracted obligations for the barge canal and various important public improvements, the abolishing of useless departments and placing the administrative departments upon a business basis, the inauguration of a new system of budget whereby every citizen of the state can ascertain for what purpose every dollar of the state is expended.

Senator Walton's devotion to the interests of his district is well known as he was present at all sessions and took an active and important part in all proceedings. His discussion of the state issues from personal knowledge, therefore, created great interest and he was listened to with the closest attention.

Senator Mills of New York city also discussed the Republican state administration and policies, and scathingly arraigned Judge Seabury for his policy of flopping around politically since he has been in public life, never being stable but always ready to grasp any new ism which presents itself. During his public career, Judge Seabury, said Senator Mills, had been affiliated with every party and every political organization except the Republican party.

Congressman Calder, the Republican candidate for United States Senator, who was the principal speaker of the evening, spoke as follows:

"Americans are about to perform a sacred duty. They are looking forward to the time when by their ballots it will be determined whether Charles Evans Hughes, the distinguished standard-bearer of the Republican party, or Woodrow Wilson, the great scholar who now occupies the White House, shall direct the affairs of the nation after March fourth next. In many respects this election will be the most important in our history.

"Every red-blooded American should be proud to have any part whatever in shaping the policy of his country. I am sure in Ulster county the American consciousness is as acute as in any other part of the country and when it comes to the exercise of the elective franchise they will use that power and privilege wisely and intelligently.

"I am here today to discuss briefly with you some of the paramount issues of the campaign. It is difficult to determine which is the paramount issue. There are so many questions of national importance to deal with and each is so important that it is hard to select from any of them one upon which special attention can be concentrated.

Prosperity is Artificial.

"I think, however, that prosperity is the real issue of the day. I do not mean by that excessive sales of stocks and bonds stimulated by the bloody war in Europe. I mean that kind of prosperity which comes as a result of wise and economic laws and which through a scientifically adjusted tariff becomes a paramount part of our national life. The prosperity which we are now enjoying is largely artificial. It is founded upon a condition of affairs abnormal in their nature and utterly at variance with all American experience.

"Candor compels us to admit that the people are better off today than they were a year ago, but truth forces us to declare that we are not as well off as we were five years ago, when the country was politically directed by the Republican party.

No Foreign Exploitation.

"Prosperity cannot be permanently guaranteed unless the producers of this nation have their interests safeguarded by the national government. I do not mean by this that the nation is to assume a paternal relation to all men who produce anything worth while. But the nation can and ought to see to it that the farmer, the mechanic and the manufacturer of this country are not made the subjects of exploitation by the foreigner whose only interest in us can be expressed in dollars and cents.

"The Democrats insist that they have not only paved the way to prosperity, but have put prosperity on the highway and given it a big boost. Prosperity under the conditions which now prevail is so entirely a matter of course that only the simplest-minded of men would expect anything else.

But the claim that the Democratic party is responsible for it is so utterly absurd that I wonder at their audacity in making it. The only logical way to give the Democratic party credit for prosperity in the United States is to charge it with responsibility for the ghastly war now in progress. Of course, this is a manifest absurdity. The war was the result of causes over which we had no control whatever. But the claim that the Democrats are responsible for the prosperity we now have is just as absurd

Imports Are Still Large.

"Europe has a vast army of men and women at work killing each other or making weapons for that purpose. Hence she has not time to commercially invade the United States. But in spite of the fact that the war has to a large extent paralyzed commerce in Europe and on the high seas, we bought in foreign markets last year goods to the value of nearly $2,200,000,000. This is more than five hundred million dollars in excess of our imports for the year ending June 30, 1913, the last year of the operation of the old tariff law.

"These goods came in despite of the fact that the average amount of bottoms on the high seas had been greatly reduced by the war. If we cannot protect Americans from commercial invasion now, how are we going to do it when the many millions of men and women about whom I have already spoken return to their ordinary and normal occupations?

"The Underwood tariff law, only a trifle higher than the Hamiltonian tariff, the first in the nation's history, was given a fair chance before hostilities were opened and it was generally agreed that it was a failure.

"We enjoyed prosperity from 1897 until 1913 simply because the people had implicit confidence in their industries and in the ability of the Republican party to so direct the affairs of the nation that our position before the world would be one commanding respect.

Is for Preparedness.

"Of course, I am for preparedness, for the kind of preparedness which prepares the youth of the country for possible military service.

"Some persons argue that it is not the concern of the governing powers of the nation to see that business, industry and agriculture are firmly rooted and grounded in our system. They will tell you that government should not concern itself with the business of private citizens, but should confine itself to its ancient function of preserving order, suppressing insurrection, repelling invaders and the like. This is the nation view of the functions of government.

"The first concern of any government should be to see that happiness is general diffused among the people. And how can any nation menaced by insecurity guarantee anything like happiness to its citizens. If we are prosperous the people in the main are happy. If our industries cease their activities and mechanics and laborers are thrown out of work by the hundreds of thousand as was the case in the early part of the Wilson administration, it is possible that our people generally shall be happy. Government which neglects its opportunity to better the economic conditions among its own people is guilty of a grave offense against the very nation which it pretends to govern.

Voters Sit in Judgment.

"The voters of this country are now sitting in judgment upon the acts of the party now in power. Its record is spread before the nation and now the great jury of American voters is getting ready to record its verdict. The verdict will be given without unnecessary heat; it will be a dispassionate condemnation of the policies of the party. It is impossible that this can be otherwise.

"For fifteen years during which time the Republicans were in control of the affairs of the nation and when the world was at peace, our prosperity was of the most substantial kind. We had no extraordinary demand for our products created by war conditions. The demands were normal and natural. But our mills were kept busy, our plants were in continual operation.

"We were prosperous during those years because wise and enlightened statesmanship had recognized the fact that it was impossible for the workmen, farmers and mechanics of America to compete with their fellow craftsmen of Europe and at the same time maintain the American standard of living.

Tariff Act a Failure.

"But as soon as the Democrats came into power they repealed the tariff under which we enjoyed such substantial and long continued prosperity and substituted a measure which is at least seventy per cent free trade. We were promised that under this tariff our customs receipts would be larger than under the Republican protective tariff. How this was to be accomplished unless by the importation of goods aggregating in value about fifty per cent greater than the annual amount imported under the Payne law, the apologists for the Underwood tariff have never troubled themselves to explain.

"But the truth is that as a revenue producer this law is a dismal failure. We received 33 1-3 per cent less revenue at our ports of entry during the last fiscal year than during the year 1913, the last year in which the Republican tariff was operative. But we have imported goods to the value of a half billion dollars in excess of that year.

Confidence in People.

"During the fifteen years of world peace prior to the election of a Democratic president and a Democratic Congress the real and personal wealth of this nation had increased from $77,000,000,000 to $187,000,000,000. This was done without giving to business an artificial stimulus. The people felt secure. They had confidence in the government. They settled down to enjoy the good things which peace, fortified by competent direction of public affairs, guarantees.

"The people had confidence in their railways, in their steel plants, in their farms and in all wealth-producing agencies. It was because of this confidence that they proceeded to produce on a large scale. They were not afraid that their products would in vain seek markets. Honestly acquired capital and honestly applied labor were equally protected and enjoyed an equal rank before the eye of the nation. In 1897, the first year of McKinley's administration, we produced 7,000,000 tons of steel and in 1913 we produced 31,000,000 tons of that commodity.

"It is unnecessary, I think, for me to say anything about our humiliating experiences in Mexico. This is a story which is familiar to every citizen.

Era of Inefficiency Ending.

"The Republican Party is the party of efficiency, of progress and aggressiveness. Our distinguished leader, Charles Evans Hughes, has promised that whether on land or on sea he will insist that Americans and America will be respected; that their lives will be held sacred, their property inviolate and their honor upheld. I subscribe to this doctrine because it is the doctrine of American manhood, because it is the doctrine of the Republican party and because it accords with my own conception of manhood and Americanism.

"Americanism is a system as much as an expression of devotion to our country. By Americanism we mean liberty; justice; the right to life, liberty and pursuit of happiness; the right to be the leaders in all that is exalting and all that makes for human happiness of all humanity. But it means above all things, as our illustrious leader has so happily phrased it, America first and America efficient.

"Thank God the day of inefficiency in the conduct of our national affairs is fast coming to an end and soon will come the dawn of the happy morning when firmness and farseeing Americanism will take its place.

GERMANY TO FIGHT TO BITTER END

New York Newspaper Man Finds no Peace Sentiment—No Shortage of Food, Owing to Regulations.

By Telegraph to The Freeman

New York, Oct. 10.—"The outlook for peace in Germany never was darker than now. The German people will fight to the bitter end, but they are moved now by fear of defeat rather than by hope of victory."

Herbert B. Swope, city editor of the New York World, returning today after a two months' stay in Germany, thus summed up his impressions gained in that country.

Swope related by way of confirmation of reports that there is ground for the anxiety felt in Germany for the sub-sea liner Bremen, that on September 16, Alfred Lohmann, president of the concern which built the Deutschland and Bremen, called him over the long distance telephone at Berlin and asked him to notify him immediately upon receipt of news from America that the Bremen had arrived there. Swope said Lohmann told him that such news was expected within five days at the most.

Swope added that there is no shortage of food now in Germany, owing to the stringent nation-wide regulations.

CONTENTS OF LETTER BROUGHT BY U-53

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 10.—The letter which Captain-Lieutenant Hans Rose of the U-53 sent to the German ambassador from Nantucket last Saturday contained brief notes from the German foreign office outlining Germany's present attitude on the submarine issue.

This was learned here today from an absolutely trustworthy source in immediate touch with the Central Powers' embassies.

The U-53 was sent speeding across the Atlantic in a semi-race with the Frederick VIII for the purpose of imparting to the German ambassador before Mr. Gerard's arrival here, just where the German government stands on the submarine issue now.

In substance, the International News Service was informed, the message entrusted to the U-boat commander contains exactly what the German foreign office asked Ambassador Gerard to report to President Wilson. It is a resume of the declaration given to Ambassador Gerard shortly before he left Berlin by the German chancellor, the foreign minister and the under-secretary of state for foreign affairs.

Direct cable connections with Count von Bernstorff being impossible, the expedient of the U-boat was chosen. It was imperative for the German ambassador to know accurately the American diplomat's mission, in order to be able to carry out his government's policies. It was pointed out that it is customary for all governments to inform their diplomatic representatives abroad immediately of all important declarations made to representatives of foreign governments and particularly of any change of policy, actual or prospective.

U. S. DESTROYERS TO SAVE LIVES

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Newport, R. I., Oct. 10.—A fleet of 12 United States destroyers left here at 11 o'clock today to look for a boatload of sailors from the British freighter Kingston which is reported to be still missing. Earlier reports were that all the Kingston's crew were safe on an incoming Greek steamship.

The Kingston was one of the ships sunk by a German submarine on Sunday.

Rigid watch is also being kept by United States ships to prevent activities by submarines within neutral waters.

Five miles apart, the destroyers are covering the Atlantic all the way from Montauk Point, Long Island, to Nantucket Lightship. The Paulding was the first to get away and she was rapidly followed by 11 others that raced toward the high seas at top speed with clouds of black smoke belching from their funnels.

Asked if he thought that the German submarines had started on their voyage to Germany, Rear Admiral Gleaves, U. S. N., replied: "Your guess is as good as mine."

Burglars in Battle.

London, Oct. 11.—"A burglar has won the Victoria Cross, seventy other burglars have laid down their lives for their country and more than 700 persons listed in police records are now fighting for Great Britain," said the Bishop of Thetford at Richmond, Yorkshire.

NEW WITNESS IN VAN AKEN CASE

Whether Edwin Van Aken will be tried at the October term of supreme court will not be known until two weeks have been consumed in trying civil cases, according to Judge Hasbrouck who is presiding at this term of court. Corporation Counsel William D. Brinnier on Monday afternoon moved for a trial at the present term of court but the motion was opposed by District Attorney Frederick G. Traver on the ground that witnesses for the prosecution could not be secured, and also that the case had never been properly transferred from county court where it was first tried and a verdict against the defendant found. Mr. Traver stated that, therefore, the supreme court had no jurisdiction over the indictment.

When Mr. Brinnier with Mayor Canfield and City Judge William D. Brinnier, who represent the defendant, made the motion for immediate trial Judge Hasbrouck withheld his decision until Mr. Van Aken had been brought to the court room. When Van Aken appeared in the court room he appeared calm and confident and listened to the decision of the court with the greatest interest. Not even the mention by District Attorney Traver that a new witness had been discovered and that her name would be withheld unless the court desired that it be made known, seemed to cause Mr. Van Aken any nervousness.

Major Chandler, who is now doing military duty along the Mexican border, and Dr. Otto H. Schulz, are two witnesses who are unable to attend at present.

At the conclusion of both arguments Judge Hasbrouck stated that he would receive affidavits from both parties on Wednesday morning, from the district attorney to the effect that he was unable to produce important witnesses and an answer from the defence, and at the close of two weeks of civil business the court would decide whether he would try the case at the present term of court.

Mr. Brinnier, in behalf of the accused man, made a plea for immediate trial on the ground that if Mr. Van Aken was innocent he should be released from custody, as he had already served a year in state prison at Sing Sing and had been confined for an equal period in the county, and if he were guilty he should also know that.

Great interest was shown when District Attorney Traver announced that a new and important witness, who had not testified at the first trial, had been found. The name of the witness was not disclosed and what bearing that testimony may have on the case when tried remains to be seen.

SUBMARINES HAVE MADE ESCAPE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Newport, R. I., Oct. 10.—German commerce raiders that bore down on shipping off the New England coast on Sunday, sending six vessels to the bottom, are believed to have made a clean escape.

Although the captain of the Nantucket Lightship reported seeing three submarines it is practically certain now that only two were present, the U-53 and the U-61. The U-61, it is believed here, may have been acting as a supply ship as United States naval men reported seeing such a ship hovering near the U-53.

There has been no confirmation of the wireless reports that nine merchant ships were sunk. United States naval officials here have come to the opinion that only six were destroyed.

It has been definitely established that no lives were lost. The missing crew of the British freighter Kingston has been picked up and is being carried to New York on a Greek ship whose name was confused in wireless transmission.

Whether or not the raiders retired to a secret submarine base on the American coast or are on their way back to Germany is uncertain. But a big fleet of United States destroyers is steaming up and down the coast keeping a strict watch to prevent violations of neutrality of any nature whatsoever.

The Atlantic has been combed by wireless during the past 48 hours, warning incoming and outgoing merchant ships. As a result many of the liners have changed their course from the usual lanes of travel.

Of the big ships caught in the danger zone were the passenger liners Cameronia and Frederick VIII. News was received early today that the latter ship, bearing Ambassador and Mrs. Gerard, had arrived safely at New York.

As a result of the partial paralysis of traffic and the consequent hold-up of war shipments to the Allies, United States naval officials here believe that England and France may send more warships to reinforce the patrol fleets off the American coast.

EMERSON MOTORS CO., Inc., TAKES OVER AUTO PLANT

Through Efforts of Chamber of Commerce New Concern Purchases Grand Street Plant, and Will Expend $20,000 in Repairs---To Employ Large Force and Turn Out Thousands of Cars Selling at $395 Each.

The Emerson Motors Company, Inc., of New York city, has made arrangements with Almirall & Company, the owners of the automobile plant on Grand street, to take over the plant, and the necessary papers transferring title to the property are now being drawn. This in substance was the announcement made on Monday evening at the regular monthly meeting of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce held at the city hall. President Leighton presided with Directors Carl, Burgevin, Klock, Kingman, Bernstein, Eighmey, Crane, MacFadden, Stock, Kearney and Bannon and Secretary Canfield present.

The Emerson Company has a small plant near New York city where they are building what is known as the Emerson "Four," a five passenger touring car that retails for $395. They also build trucks and tractors. According to their plans they expect to have the local plant ready and running by the first of the year, and next year they plan on building one hundred cars a day or 30,00 cars a year at the Grand street plant.

Secretary Canfield read a large amount of correspondence that had passed between the Emerson Company and Almirall & Company and the executive committee of the Chamber of Commerce. He reported how President Leighton and himself had made several trips to New York and had gotten the Emerson people and the Almirall people together in an effort to close the deal for the plant. Finally after much dickering both concerns got within $5,000 of what the Emerson people were willing to pay and the Almirall concern accept for the plant. Then President Leighton and Secretary Canfield of the local Chamber of Commerce, stepped in and agreed to pay the $5,000 under certain conditions. These conditions were set forth in a letter written by President Leighton to the Emerson concern on which he outlined the plan whereby the Chamber of Commerce would assist.

President Leighton's Plan.

The plan outlined by President Leighton in his letter was as follows:

"Upon your company (Emerson) taking title to the property in Kingston known as the Peckham Truck Works, the Chamber of Commerce of Kingston will enter into an agreement with your company to contribute toward the payment of the taxes thereon the sum of $5,000 in the following manner:

"Semi-annually upon dates hereafter to be agreed upon the Emerson Motors Company, Inc., will submit to the officers of the Chamber of Commerce, or a duly accredited representative thereof, a certified audit of the mechanical and clerical payroll disbursed in the city of Kingston the preceding six months, and within thirty days thereafter the Chamber of Commerce will pay to the Emerson Motors Company, Inc., a sum equal to two per cent of the said payroll until the sum of such payments equal $5,000.

"We also agree to receive from the Emerson Motors Company, Inc., at the time papers are signed binding the sale of the property the sum of $5,000 and give a receipt therefor, this money to be deposited in a Kingston savings bank at interest in the name of the Kingston Chamber of Commerce as a special fund to be held in trust for the benefit of Almirall & Company, present owners of the property, for their account. That upon each of the payments on the tax agreement mentioned in the preceding paragraph being made to the Emerson Motors Company, Inc., we will withdraw from such trust fund in the savings bank an amount equal to such payment and remit the same to Almirall & Company, it being understood that if at the end of five years there is any balance remaining on deposit in such trust fund in the savings bank it, together with accrued interest shall be paid over to Almirall & Company. It is also understood that if the title to the property is not transferred to your company within 30 days from the date hereof we are to withdraw the $5,000 from the savings bank and return the same to the Emerson Company."

Plan Endorsed by Directors.

Director Bernstein moved that the plan outlined by President Leighton in his letter to the Emerson Motors Company, Inc., be approved by the board, and the motion was unanimously carried.

The $5,000 Check.

The check for $5,000 mentioned in President Leighton's letter to the Emerson people had been received from them and made payable to the Kingston Chamber of Commerce and at the meeting Secretary Canfield was instructed to deposit $2,500 in the Kingston Savings Bank and $2,500 in the Rondout Savings Bank.

Remington People Moving.

The Remington Company was busy on Monday moving out of the Grand street plant material they had on hand in the building as they had become aware of the fact that negotiations were pending between the owners of the plant and the Emerson concern to take over the plant.

Will Expend $20,000.

President Leighton said that the officers of the Emerson Company had been in Kingston in consultation with the executive committee of the Chamber of Commerce and had made an inspection of the plant. According to their plans they expect to expend $20,000 in getting the plant in readiness, and want to start building cars at the earliest possible moment.

At the present time there is about 142,000 feet of available floor space and the new concern expects to build an addition, giving them more floor space.

A New Concern.

The Emerson Company was incorporate last spring. The officers are: Willis George Emerson, chairman board of directors; T. C. Campbell, president; Robert C. Kupp, vice president and chief engineer; George M. Campbell, treasurer and secretary; M. L. Shanks, assistant treasurer; S. L. Sullivan, assistant secretary. The directors are George B. Gifford, T. A. Campbell, Robert C. Kupp, J. R. Leonard, George N. Campbell, Willis George Emerson and Charles A. Towne. Amos H. Stephens is general counsel.

No Other Business.

There being no other business to be brought to the attention of the board of directors, an adjournment was taken.

DID QUINN SELL BOOZE ON SUNDAY?

At the opening of supreme court this morning a jury was taken in case No. 2, G. E. Green, state commissioner of excise, against Vincent Quinn and another, an action to recover on liquor tax bond. J. S. Frost appeared for the state department and William D. Brinnier, Jr., Sr., with Grant Brinnier of counsel for defendant.

This action was first tried before Judge Cochrane with a disagreement of the jury and at the trial now going on by agreement of both sides, the testimony taken at the former trial is read. The action is brought against Quinn and the American Bonding Company, which furnished the bond when Quinn took out his license. The amount of $500 is the sum involved in the case.

A great deal of difficulty was encountered in selecting a jury, many of the jurymen being either former saloon keepers or else members of the cold water party. Juror No. 2, however, stated that "when I was a kid I signed the pledge, but it only lasted a few days and it didn't do me no harm or good." He was accepted.

The plaintiff claims that special agents in the employ of the department went to Quinn's saloon in the village of Esopus on Sunday, January 18, 1914, and bought whiskey in violation of the excise act and also claim that the windows were screened, preventing a view of the barroom from the outside of the building. At the time of the alleged violation the saloon was conducted by Vincent Quinn and is located on the corner of the village street leading to the Esopus station.

Jurors not engaged in the case were excused until 2 o'clock this afternoon.

In Case No. 24, H. W. Palen's Sons against the Anglo American Tobacco Company, there was no appearance for the defense and judgment in the sum of $300 was ordered by the court for plaintiff.

The Quinn case consumed the morning session of the court. The defense is that there was no violation of the liquor law and the special agents had sampled other liquors before coming to Quinn's and were not in proper condition to decide what was served in the Quinn saloon.

Rastus, the burly colored man, was helping a worse for wear-and-wine student up the dormitory steps, paused and wiped the perspiration from his brow when a bystander felt himself moved to make comment. "What is your official capacity, Rastus?" "Who, me?" was the reply. "Well, I'll tell you right now, boss, and it's this yere, I'm de director ob sports at dis yeah institution ob learnin', yassah, de director ob sports."

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

1704.—A Simple, Practical Model, Girls' Dress with Sleeve in Either of Two Lengths. To be Closed in Front or Slipped Over the Head.

This attractive little model is a one-piece style. It is easy to develop and may be worn without the shield. The fronts may be closed from neck to hem, or the dress may be cut without a front closing in "slip on" style. The collar is jaunty and becoming. The long sleeves are nice where warmth is desired. For coolness and comfort the short sleeves are very appropriate.

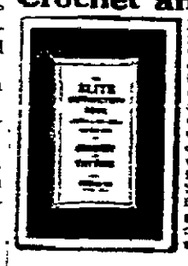

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 4, 6, 8 and 10 years. It requires 3½ yards of 36 inch material for an 8 year size.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

WAYS TO TREAT FRUIT.

Cantaloupes are delicious when served in any form if they are chilled.

One of the pretty ways to serve them is to cut them in quarters and garnish with three candied or mint cherries in each quarter. This method may be used as a dessert or as a beginning to the meal.

Peach Pie (Pennsylvania Dutch).—Line a pie plate with rich crust and fill with sliced peaches, either fresh or canned may be used; sprinkle with sugar and fill the crust with sour cream. Cover with tart strips and bake. Bake very slowly; this is simply delicious.

A pretty way to serve peaches is to peel them, halve them and fill the centers with chopped nuts and cover with whipped cream. On each serving place half a walnut.

Tart apples cooked with onions and a little salt pork fat; season with sugar, salt and pepper if liked. A most tasty dish to serve with meat as a vegetable.

Maple Apples.—Pare, halve and core half a dozen cooking apples and put into a kettle with two cupfuls of water and one cupful of maple sirup. Let simmer until they are tender, gently turning them with a fork when the edges begin to look clear. Serve cold with whipped cream.

Yellow Tomato and Chestnut Salad.—Pare 12 yellow tomatoes after dipping in scalding water, cut in halves and let stand in French dressing for half an hour. Blanch the chestnuts and chill some celery. Take a fourth of a cupful of sliced chestnuts and diced celery, mix with mayonnaise. Form nests of cress and lay the tomatoes in the cress in the shape of a maltese cross; then place a spoonful of the celery and chestnut mixture in the center on each serving. Pour over the dressing that has been drained from the tomatoes and serve with cream-cheese sandwiches.

Apple jelly made from the red Astrachans, using the peeling to give it color, makes a most beautiful jelly.

Strawberry juice added to apple juice makes a delicious jelly both to see and taste.

A. J. MURPHY BUYS STRAND BUILDING

Store Where He Started in Life as a Newsboy is Purchased by Him on Monday, and He Will Continue in Business.

Andrew J. Murphy, the popular Strand news and sporting goods dealer, on Monday purchased the building at No. 12 East Strand, which he now occupies known as the Winter building since 1876 when the late William Winter purchased it.

In 1876 Mr. Murphy started his long and successful business career as a newsboy in the employ of Mr. Winter, and later became a clerk in the store. In May, 1888, he branched out for himself in the building owned at that time by McMillan and Hale on the corner of Strand and Hasbrouck avenue, formerly known as the old Excelsior House, where for many years he conducted a news store and built up a reputation for honesty and square dealing.

Seven years ago, Mr. Murphy purchased the stock of A. E. Winter and leased the building at No. 12 East Strand from Mr. Winter's mother, and removed his business to the new store where he has carried on business ever since, and today through strict attention to business and never failing business courtesy and honesty he now owns the building and business where he first started as a boy to carry newspapers back in the seventies.

Mr. Murphy intends to carry on the business as in the past and will always try to keep up with the times in having on hand what his customers want. During his long business career, Mr. Murphy has made a host of friends who wish him success in his chosen field.

John T. Bond, the jeweler is still in the building, and has been since 1874.

KINGSTON, N. Y., OCT. 10, 1916.

An administration ruled by reason and intent upon the just solution of all problems, foreign or domestic, is what Mr. Hughes proposes to set up in Washington in the place of a terrorized administration which lacks firmness to uphold its proper resolves and has been steadfast only when political expediency was served by so doing. No one can read Mr. Hughes' outspoken declaration on the U-boat issue with Germany and the interference with American mails and trade by the Allies without being impressed with his absolute sincerity, a sincerity backed by the ability and courage to secure the recognition of American rights on land or sea the world over. When he told a Philadelphia audience that as a result of the sinking of the Lusitania, "lives of American men, women and children were ruthlessly destroyed," the Republican candidate made his position clear when he emphatically declared that "we propose to protect American lives on land and sea." In stating that he did not put life and property on the same footing, he further added: "We do not propose to tolerate any improper interference with American property, American mails, or with legitimate commercial intercourse. No American who is exercising only American rights shall be put on any blacklist by any foreign nation." Here is sound doctrine which smacks of the definition of American rights as maintained in the War of 1812. It is an unassailable position which, with Hughes behind it as president, would have prevented any destruction of American lives on the Lusitania or anywhere else. Mr. Hughes was likewise consistent when he forebore from comment upon the submarine raid off the Nantucket Coast, stating that he did not desire to embarass the administration in dealing with current matters. In this attitude Mr. Hughes is upheld by the dictates of good taste, just as his criticisms of administration failures in the past are supported by a sound sense of justice.

Without qualification it may be said that one of the strongest candidates on the Republican State ticket is Judge Cuthbert W. Pound, candidate for Associate Judge of the Court of Appeals, who is at present serving on that bench under designation of Governor Whitman. While perhaps less prominent in the present campaign than some of his associates on the State ticket, the record of this jurist is second to none of them in point of public service ably rendered. For ten years Judge Pound served as a professor of law at Cornell University, subsequently being elected State Senator from what was then the Twenty-ninth district. As a member of the legislature he was chairman of the Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections, whose salutary investigation of the election frauds at Gravesend still stands out prominently as an instance of the effectiveness of legislative inquiry when properly directed. As Senator, Judge Pound was also a member of the Lexow Committee, which investigated the government of the city of New York, and before his elevation to the Supreme Court bench he served most acceptably as a member and afterward as president of the State Civil Service Commission, which post he resigned to become legal adviser to Governor Higgins. Nearly ten years' experience on the supreme court bench preceded Judge Pound's designation to his present place on the Appeals Court bench and few men in public life have equalled this record of honorable service. It is a career familiar, however, to the people of New York State who will have an opportunity to put the seal of their approval thereon next month. That the endorsement will be State-wide in its extent goes without saying.

Hunting ducks from an aeroplane is proposed by Long Island aviators. The danger of this sport would be no greater than going into the woods of some sections of the State during the hunting season. Hunters are more numerous than ever according to the number of licenses issued by the authorities, and already a number of casualties have been reported. These will be increased when the deer season opens, when highpowered rifles come into play along with the less deadly shotgun. Ordinary human carelessness seems to be increased to the nth power when an amateur sportsman gets his hands on a death-dealing weapon. In addition to that there are "hunters,"—the quotation marks are more than justified,—who take delight in cutting loose at almost every conspicuous object within range. Such reckless exhibitions are never chargeable to genuine sportsmen. All such take the greatest care of their guns and observe every precaution for their personal safety as well as that of their companions. Notwithstanding their careful methods, hunting and hunters are usually judged by the extreme types of asininity exhibited by the class of heedless gunners first mentioned. If punishment were imposed upon the lawless pots of these land pirates there would be fewer "accidents" reported during the hunting season and more land would be accessible for hunting instead of being posted by farmers compelled to act for the preservation of livestock and property on the farm.

GIRL IN GREEN SWEATER.

After Shocking North Front Street She is Sent to Albany.

Miss Rose Hassinger, 25 years old, of Saugerties, the girl in the green sweater, was arraigned before Recorder Lang this morning on a charge of public intoxication, and was sentenced to four months in the Albany penitentiary. She was later taken there by Policeman Daun.

Miss Rose has been in trouble before, and has spent some time in the Ulster county jail. Monday evening she visited the uptown saloons in company with a "gentleman friend" and while in a saloon on North Front street she and her friend were thrown out by the bouncer. Miss Rose somewhat unsteady on her pins and as she walked down the street made wild grabs for the telegraph poles to which she hung until she recovered her balance when she proceeded as far as the next pole where she would repeat the performance.

She also had a half pint of something stronger than water and between rests would drink a drop or so from the bottle. She made such a nuisance of herself that Policeman Hess placed her under arrest. Her "gentleman friend" got away.

Miss Rose is a tall, heavily built girl and this morning was attired in a green sweater and a dark skirt. She said she had never been in Albany before.

DR. MALE'S SUIT TO DUTCHESS COURT

Judge Hasbrouck has handed down a decision granting the motion made before him at Saturday's special term of the supreme court on behalf of Vassar Brothers' Hospital of Poughkeepsie to change the place of trial of the suit brought against it by Dr. Jonathan T. Male of New Paltz, from Ulster to Dutchess county.

The action is brought to recover damages by reason of the death of Dr. Male's young son, who was under treatment at the hospital and whose death, according to Dr. Male, was due to improper care and negligence in the use of a suction siphon which was used to relieve the boy's lungs from congestion. Brinnier & Canfield are attorneys for Dr. Male and opposed the motion for a change of place of trial, which was made on behalf of the hospital by Charles F. Cossum of Poughkeepsie.

In deciding the motion Judge Hasbrouck says:

"The plaintiff opposes the motion to change the place of trial upon the ground of a defect in the moving affidavit in that the occupations and residences of defendant's witnesses are not stated. He cites Lyman vs. Gramercy Club, 28 A. D., 30, as supporting his contention and it does. But in the case at bar the witnesses named are the nurses at the hospital and thus their occupations and the place of performance of them are made plain. So too the occupations are given of the physicians without street and number but they because of their calling are most easy to be found. Thus the whole force of the objection falls. It is true that the nurses and actors are employes of the defendant and that the material and necessary witnesses of the plaintiff outnumber them and that they—such employes—may not be considered in determining the place of the venue. Yet the place of the transaction was at Vassar Hospital at Poughkeepsie and the work of the hospital is that of benevolence rather than of profit. The design of the hospital is not to make money. It is to relieve human suffering.

"Another consideration moves the court. About all of the non-expert witnesses of the plaintiff live at Highland just across the Hudson river from the county seat of Dutchess county—Poughkeepsie—or at New Paltz some nine miles to the westward. These witnesses have a much less distance to go and better facilities for going to Poughkeepsie than Kingston. Real convenience would be subserved by having the trial at Poughkeepsie and it is my conviction also that the ends of justice would be promoted.

"Motion granted with $10 costs to abide the event of the action."

ST. PETER'S CHURCH PICNIC.

Grand Annual Picnic at St. Peter's Hall on Wednesday.

The popular summer festival of St. Peter's postponed on account of the epidemic will be held on Wednesday, October 11, at St. Peter's school hall. All the features of the picnic at the point will be had indoors. The children's games for prizes will take place in the gymnasium from 2 to 5. From 5 to 9 a German supper at a very reasonable price will be served. At all times meals a la carte and refreshments will be on hand. The meals will be served by the women of the parish, the same as at the outdoor festival.

From 9 till midnight the hall will be let out for dancing under the auspices of the united societies. The ticket issued for the summer festival will be good for the dance. This is an opportune time for a reunion after the summer months and the restraint on children's gatherings.

Not only members but the public in general are invited to avail themselves of this opportunity of enjoying food prepared and served by the women and young ladies in German style. The women should make this holiday and the men should treat their families to this inviting supper and in surroundings most congenial. There will also be prize bowling and cards at the disposal of those who want to play.

CONGRESSIONAL UNION ACTIVE

Woman's Suffrage Has Organized Strong Committees For Work This Fall — More Co-operation Needed to Get the Amendment Put Across.

Mrs. Robert Baker of Washington comes of a long line of army and navy ancestors. She is going to Illinois to organize for the woman's party.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, in charge of raising the large campaign fund for the woman's party is busy at work completing the fund and has adopted as her motto, "A thousand dollars a day from now until election day."

Both the Republican and Democratic parties are now fully alive to the importance of the women's vote in the west and realize that it may spell defeat or victory at the polls in November, according to Mrs. Baker, press chairman of the Congressional Union For Woman Suffrage and the woman's party, who returned to Washington recently after having been in New York conferring with political leaders of the national parties.

"The leaders of the national parties are now coming to us and consulting as to the western women's vote," said Mrs. Baker, "just as a man would go to a specialist when sick. We are 'specialists' on the woman's vote problem and know how to diagnose the case. For the past three years or more we have been studying it. We know, therefore, what its strength amounts to and what can and will be done with it in the coming election. We have been working among the women voters for the past three years and the Congressional union, of which the woman's party is an outgrowth, is the only national organization which has been doing such work."

Brocades For Autumn.

Sartorial history repeats itself constantly. Satins and brocades, which have their recurrent periods of popularity, are once more a la mode. For the autumn beautiful brocades in self tone and in metal effects are to be extremely popular, the entire leaning in the selection of silks being for those of high luster, the satin surface weaves taking precedence over corded silks. The fabrics showing some "body" will generally be preferred to the softer ones for fall and winter wear, especially when selected for daytime or actual service garments.

Serge, gabardine, broadcloth and tricot are fabrics that will be greatly favored in the development of the popular coat dresses, and quite the smartest frocks will employ one of the wool fabrics mentioned, combined with satin, in their makeup. A touch of bright silk or bead embroidery is a favorite trimming addition.

For the Bath.

This is a fine mixture for the bath. It is sweet and refreshing to the body. Four pounds of fine oatmeal, two quarts of clean bran, one and one-half pounds of powdered orris root, one and one half pounds of almond meal, one pound of white castile soap, powdered and dried; three ounces of primrose sachet. Instead of placing in cheesecloth bags which is a wasteful way of using the delightful meal, sprinkle a little of the mixture on the moistened wash cloth.

This recipe, if rubbed well into the body, acts like magic. It certainly is simple and well worth trying. Mix a tablespoonful of lavender water with several times the amount of pure olive oil. Apply a little at a time and rub it well into the body with the entire hand, using a rotary motion. Keep the body warm while taking the treatment.

Gas Saved.

In order to economize gas, roast a small joint of meat over a gas ring instead of lighting the oven to do it. Well grease a saucepan or casserole, put the meat into it, with plenty of extra dripping, so that there shall be no risk of burning, put it over a gas jet turned very low and let it cook. Turn and baste the meat often, and it gets beautifully brown.

Her Vacation.

Little Elizabeth was enjoying an outing with her grandmother. She was amiable always, quite willing to do as her grandmother wished, except in one respect: she rebelled at the daily nap. "Why should I sleep?" she remonstrated. "This is my vacation."

TOPICS NEW YORK IS TALKING ABOUT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 10.—New York is all agog today over the exploits of certain German submarines which have sunk four British, one Norwegian and one Dutch steamer off Nantucket. In each instance warning was given and passengers and crews were permitted to take to the boats before their ships were sunk, and, so far as known, all were subsequently rescued by revenue cutters and other vessels. Visions of what might amount to a blockade of American ports by trans-oceanic submarines are giving the horrors to all who are in any way connected with the export trade, and as the present prosperity is entirely dependent on such trade, practically everyone may be said to be so connected. That a continuance of this sort of interference with vessels sailing to and from American ports will come very near to causing a panic is freely predicted in financial circles. The president, who is at his summer home at Long Branch, almost within sight of the scene of the submersible campaign, is described as greatly worried over the situation.

Mr. Perkins's View.

That President Wilson's failure to take any emphatic stand or to bring to a logical close any of his negotiations constitute the immediate cause of the latest interference with American trade is the broad intimation of George W. Perkins. Mr. Perkins calls attention to the fact that when the last notes were exchanged with Germany she said she would suspend her submarine operations provided we would take up with England the blockade question. "President Wilson simply ignored this part of Germany's request," says Mr. Perkins, "and I have ever since been expecting that Germany in due time, if pressed hard enough by her necessity, would return to submarine warfare and plead in her defense that we had failed to comply with one of the conditions she had made. Certainly, there is no one left now who can say that we enjoy splendid isolation because of the oceans that separate us from other countries. A submarine fighting machine has proved that we can be attacked successfully without warning and great damage inflicted within the twinkling of an eye. Well informed men have known this for a long time and and the most inexcusable thing of all the inexcusable things of the Wilson administration has been its failure through the last three years to prepare us for the new conditions which modern inventions have developed. This is not only true of war at arms, but war in industry, for we are as unprepared for peace as we are for war."

A Woman's View.

It is doubtful if any man has explained his reasons for supporting Mr. Hughes with such clear, convincing logic as characterizes the statement of Mrs. Nelson O'Shaughnessy, whose husband was acting American ambassador to Mexico during and for some time before the seizure of Vera Cruz. Mrs. O'Shaughnessy says, "I am for Hughes because with my own eyes I have seen the destruction of a nation; with my own ears I have heard the cries of that bleeding, agonized remnant of what three years ago was the Mexican people; I have seen, under the auspices of the Democratic administration, organized government destroyed in a sovereign state—whose greatest misfortune at this time is to be our neighbor. I have seen authority destroyed as certainly as if we had taken the machinery of administration into our physical hands and broken it. And in regard to all this I have seen installed an organized campaign of misrepresentation where the wrongs of this sister nation are concerned—whereby the cries of the people have been stifled, their agonies concealed, their rights—their human rights—trampled to earth. I have seen the house of God profaned the ministers of Christ cast into ignominy, holy women defiled. And last, but not least, I have seen our citizens, whose right to protection there is as indisputable as that of the sons of England, Germany, France, Spain, Japan, despoiled of the fruits of honest labor. Our women have been outraged, our children tortured, our men left to lie in their blood. Now, with the help of God, and confiding in the underlying greatness of our nation I hope for the vindication of our honor where other nations are concerned—and the performance of our duty where our own people are concerned. I am for Hughes—because I believe a man has arisen who, as chief executive, will safeguard our most precious possession on land and sea—at home and abroad—our national honor."

Useless Waste.

Because President Wilson was "too proud to fight" and because he regarded those who advocated adequate preparedness for self defense as "hysterical," there has occurred the greatest possible waste of public funds, of individual energy and opportunity and the most serious sacrifice of individuals. Because, until he had been convinced by other Democrats that it was politically expedient to advocate preparedness, Mr. Wilson persisted in shutting his own eyes and trying to shut those of the public regarding conditions in Mexico, there are now on the border, under arms, approximately 150,000 national guardsmen whose place, if there is no war, is at home, following their normal avocations and supporting their families. The loss to them of this service is a total loss. There will be no opportunity to recover that which they have lost because Mr. Wilson's lack of sincerity and foresight made necessary their performance of that police duty which should devolve upon the regular army. There will be no compensation to their wives and children and dependent mothers for the privations they have suffered because their natural supporters were called upon to do this work. The cost to the government, and therefore to the whole people, will be enormous. Already it has cost not less than $125,000,000. This is the price—a part of the price—the people are paying for Mr. Wilson's war with Mexico. During the month ending September 23 last, 372 men were recruited in New York state to fill up militia regiments. The cost of this recruiting was $25,000, or about $70 per man.

Roosevelt at Wilkes-Barre.

Ex-President Roosevelt, who appointed the Anthracite Coal Strike Commission and forced the owners of the Pennsylvania coal mines to accept arbitration of their controversy with their employes, has decided to go to Wilkes-Barre, on Saturday, October 14, and there explain to the very miners who were the beneficiaries of his insistence on arbitration, how President Wilson sacrificed the principle of arbitration when he took his stand against arbitrating the demands of the railway brotherhoods, how he has injured the cause of organized labor, with the possible exception of the members of the brotherhoods, and how their advantage is merely temporary, because Mr. Wilson has by his course taken negotiations regarding all questions affecting the conditions of labor from the unions and the employers and established the precedent for fixing them by legislative enactment. He will show that the inevitable tendency of Mr. Wilson's course is to reduce the labor unions to mere insurance agencies and that this is a backward step for organized labor. As Mr. Roosevelt's friendship for labor has been substantially demonstrated, his interpretation of the Adamson bill is what may be regarded as the home of arbitration of labor controversies is bound to be awaited with the utmost interest.

To Speak on Border.

Col. Roosevelt purposes to journey all the way to the Mexican border and at the little town of Gallop, New Mexico, to discuss "How President Wilson Got Us Into War." So vital to the interests of the country does Mr. Roosevelt regard the election of Gov. Hughes that he is determined to let no consideration of his personal convenience interfere with his doing everything possible to promote that end.

Stories of a Buddhist Image.

Interesting stories are told of a Buddhist image in a temple in the suburbs of Kioto. According to a record contained inside the image it was carved by a famous Buddhist priest, and it is believed that worshipers of the image will surely receive divine favor. At one time when a fire broke out in the temple, unknown to the caretaker, the image awoke him by calling "Fire!" and thus saved the temple from destruction. Another story says that the image was once stolen by a thief, who, however, fell dead when he was running away. Still another report says that no dust ever accumulates on the head of the image.

The average American statistics say, eats eighty and one-half pounds of beef, seven and one-half pounds of veal, seventy-eight pounds of pork and lard and six and one-half pounds of mutton and lamb every year.

Modern Politeness.

Where the crowds rub elbows, the polite man is now too often one who has something to sell. He is suave, bland, conciliatory, and complimentary, and it is an axiom in business that the poorer the article, the smoother must be the salesman. A grotesque situation—this assumption of the unnatural for a purpose clearly visible to the one it is desired to influence—often by the concealment of truth.—Alan Southern in Harper's Magazine.

Cures Difficult Cases Without Surgery

The craze for cutting is still growing. A great many doctors advise operations when entirely unnecessary. Not that it is always done to make more money from the case, but because many physicians have not given sufficient time to study and research to enable them to make correct diagnosis of obscure diseases, or to understand how to treat such cases successfully with improved medical methods. Too many doctors merely accept the ideas and follow the practice of other physicians and advise operations because it is a popular medical craze. Some doctors will even perform operations, when they know that other treatment would produce a cure. Surgery may be necessary in some cases, but many serious cases, where physicians had declared an operation was the only means which would offer a hope of saving life, the use of the proper treatment did produce a cure, and the patient restored to health, without the danger of an operation. A recent case will prove of interest. A young lady, supposed to be suffering from appendicitis. Four doctors, two of whom were prominent surgeons, had advised this patient that an operation was absolutely necessary. A thorough examination found it was not a case of appendicitis at all, but one of obstruction of the bile ducts and impaction of the gall bladder. Treatment was given immediately which would remove the obstruction and reduce the inflammation and in a few days the patient was entirely relieved of all suffering, and has since made a complete recovery. There are many similar cases where operations were performed and the results often times proved fatal, where a correct diagnosis and the proper treatment would have saved human life and suffering. Cases of gall stone can often be cured without operation, as well as many other troubles, including special diseases of women. If patients are advised to submit to the dangers of surgery, they should not consent until they obtain the opinion of Dr. Swinburne, a specialist who believes more in the efficiency of improved treatment rather than the wild craze for operations.

The doctor has permanent offices at 346 Broadway, Kingston, where patients can secure consultation on Fridays from 9 to 12 a. m., and 1 to 4 p. m. Also Thursday evenings, 6:30 to 8 p. m.

STOLE BAGS AND SOLD THEM BACK

Mower Boys Would Take Feed Bags From Local Concern, and Then Return Them for a Consideration—Pathetic Case of Young Negroes.

Barefooted and clad in winter overcoats too big for them and with hats down over their ears, Fred Mower aged 11 years, and Harry, his brother, aged 9 years, two young negro boys, sat in police headquarters this morning anxiously waiting to know what the judge would do with them, yet glad to have a warm place to toast their bare feet chilled through by the sudden change in the temperature.

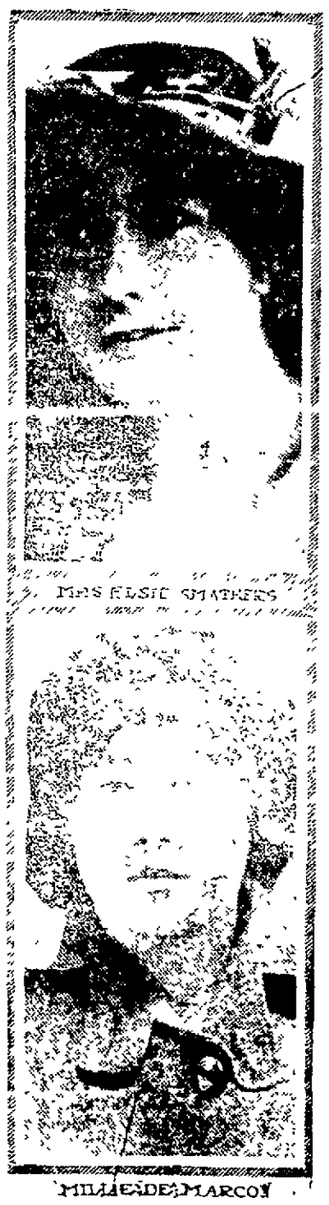

They had been caught on Monday afternoon by Mr. Ebel of Wolven & Ebel stealing bottles and bags from the store house, and were turned over to Policeman Kuehn. From what the police said the youngsters had been in the habit of stealing feed bags from local concerns and then calling later at the office and selling back the bags to the former owners, who were unaware of the fact that they were buying their own property.

The youngsters have been in trouble a number of times and complaints have been made about them to the police. Their mother is dead and their father went to Poughkeepsie about three weeks ago and got married and from last reports left for California with his bride, leaving the two boys to live with their aunt.

The boys have no shoes or stockings and according to the police no prospects of any one furnishing them unless the alms board or some charitable institution cares for them.

The aunt had been notified to appear in court, but said she was not able to come as she could not leave her work.

Recorder Lang decided to hold the matter open until tonight, and in the meantime the police got in touch with Superintendent Edmonston at the City Home. It is likely the two boys will be sent away to some institution.

Miss Millie de Marco is held a prisoner in Philadelphia as the leader of the band of masked assassins who attempted to hold up the automobile which Mrs. Smathers was driving and in which her uncle, Harry Rider, her father, Alexander Jackson Rider and John Bigly, were seated, carrying a $4,000 pay roll for cranberry pickers on Alexander Rider's bogs.

Mrs. Smathers, who has been a widow only a month, drove her machine through the masked bandits as they shot at the occupants of the car. She herself was badly wounded, as was her father and Mr. Bigly.

China's Sugar Palm.

In the southern parts of French Indo-China the natives obtain both food and a certain kind of wine from the sugar palm. Several varieties of this palm are exploited by the natives. The tree attains a height of fully twenty feet, but cannot be tapped to any advantage until it is fifty or sixty years of age, when it begins to flower. The flowers, which generally appear at the end of branches, are cut open, and the sap which exudes is collected in little bamboo cups. Sometimes a single flower will produce a quart and a half of sap daily for a month, but the average is about a quart each day per tree during the four or five months of inflorescence.

What He Was Showing.

A young man sitting in a subway car with legs crossed and one foot showing a highly polished shoe and silk sock extended so far into the aisle as to make it almost impossible for people to pass was brought to a sense of his disregard for others by three young women who sat opposite. One said, "I wonder if he is showing his foot or his shoe?" The second said loud enough to be heard above the car clatter, "I think he wants to show his clocked socks—watch it." "No," said the third; "he's only showing his bad manners." The foot came down and was lost in the crowd which got off at the next station.—New York Tribune.

Aliens In Medieval Times.

Medieval England had a rough and ready way of insuring the good behavior of aliens. According to the Saxon law of frankpledge, which remained in force until 1870, a "hosteler" might entertain a foreigner longer than a day and a night unless he undertook to answer for his guest's behavior. No foreigners were allowed to keep hotels in London. Some became naturalized in order to qualify for this privilege. Even these were not suffered to compete on equal terms with the natives, being required to keep their houses "in the heart of the city" and rigidly excluded from the more profitable regions near the Thames.

GERARD LANDS; WILL NOT TALK

Ambassador Says He is Sure he is Going Back to Germany but Refuses to Confirm or Deny Other Reports.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 10—Refusing to confirm or deny any of the reports published about his mission, James W Gerard, United States ambassador to Germany, arrived here today on the Scandinavian-American liner Frederick VIII. The ambassador was accompanied by Mrs. Gerard.

"I won't say a word," declared Mr. Gerard emphatically when questioned by reporters. "I refuse to confirm or deny anything."

This was Mr Gerard's first vacation since the war broke out Throughout the two years and more of conflict he has been living in the center of the European maelstrom

The Frederick VIII passed through the new submarine war zone off the New England coast without being endangered in any way.

An enthusiastic greeting was given the returning ambassador A committee headed by Public Commissioner Oscar Straus went down the bay to meet him

Swarms of reporters besieged the ambassador in the gray dawn as the Frederick VIII slid into her moorings at Quarantine and later as he was carried up the bay on the police boat Patrol

Was he coming with peace proposals from the Kaiser for submission to President Wilson? Was he bearing a message of warning that Germany is to launch a new submarine warfare more ruthless than anything ever known? These and other questions rained upon the diplomat, but to all he was silent.

If, as has been reported, Mr. Gerard was merely coming home for rest and recreation after his arduous labors in the war zone, he got the welcome of a conquering here All the way up the bay the police boat was greeted with roaring sirens and flags that were dipped in salute Upon landing at the Battery there was another demonstation.

The committee of welcome was composed of 84 members appointed by the mayor Mayor Mitchel was not present in person, being absent from the city, so New York city was represented officially by Acting Mayor Dowling

The committee boarded the liner and an impromptu reception was held upon the deck

Mr Straus presented a huge bouquet of American Beauty roses to Mrs Gerard and made a short speech of welcome

The only representative of the government present was Dudley Field Malone collector of the port.

Some of the passengers of the Frederick VIII who were on the deck said a submarine had been sighted from the deck of the liner last Sunday

The submersible was a long distance off and its nationality could not be ascertained but some of those who saw it thought it might have been the 'U-53"

While the ceremonies were in progress Mr Gerard was being felicitated upon his safe return by reporters and others When informed that he was looking well the diplomat replied

"Why shouldn't I? It's this bracing New York air. I feel ten years younger since I entered the harbor"

Another said

"Your hair seems to be a little grayer, Mr Gerard"

"Well," replied the envoy "I'm getting older Besides I have a very big office and heavy duties to attend to in Berlin"

Mr Gerard declared emphatically that he would return to Germany saying

"I am just as sure that I will go back as that I am standing here"

Pressed in particular about the report that he is here to warn the president of Germany's intention to begin a most drastic submarine war, he retorted sharply.

"Well, that didn't come from me, did it?"

An American newspaper correspondent, who had accompanied Mr Gerard across on the Frederick VIII has sent by wireless to his paper a story saying that the real object of the ambassador's visit was to impress President Wilson personally with the seriousness of the cloud hanging over German-American relations as a result of submarine activities The correspondent also averred that the ambassador brought no peace proposals

Mr Gerard was told of this story but refused absolutely to say a work. His only answer was a tightening of the lips

Mr and Mrs. Gerard were in the best of health and very happy to get home. The ambassador at first refused to pose for the photographers but later his wife got him to consent Mrs Gerard looked very handsome in a smart navy blue traveling suit, topped by a broad blue velvet hat with a gold band.

Relieved.

"Where did you get these examples of faultily constructed sentences?" asked Dr. Campbell, the great rhetorician, of a student.

"Out of one of your books, doctor."

"What! Out of one of my books?"

"Yes, sir; out of your 'Rhetoric.'"

"Out of my 'Rhetoric?'" roared the doctor. "Impossible! Never did I make use of such language You are mistaken, badly mistaken. But—but—where in my 'Rhetoric' did you find such composition?" he demanded angrily.

"In the part 'Sentences to Be Corrected.'"

"O h-h-h! A-h-h-h! Yes, yes," said the relieved doctor.

Plaint of an Artist.

"How was the big political meeting?"

"It should have been better," replied the leader of the band. "If the speakers hadn't kept getting up and interrupting the music it would have been a fine concert."—Washington Star.

CHALMERS MOTOR CO. Detroit, Mich. U.S.A.

Quality First

After Nov. 30, it will cost you just $70 more to buy a 7-22 Chalmers. But the price on the 5-passenger 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers remains (for the time being) $1090 Detroit

Until midnight of Nov. 30 you can get a 7-22 Chalmers for $1280 Detroit—a car of rare ability, fascinating in body equipment, and, like a beautiful woman, of exquisite charm.

After that date the price becomes $1350 Detroit—$70 more. The $70 is just a few dollars less than the increase in cost of manufacture of this car since its appearance in June.

To those who have longed for the 5-passenger 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers—and have not yet possessed one, just a word of warning: the price remains unchanged just now—$1090 Detroit; we do not know how long this low price will continue. We reserve the right to increase the price without notice.

Only those who are buying materials such as go into high-grade automobiles can begin to realize the steady, upward trend of the materials market.

Just one condition today prevents a rise in price of the 5-passenger 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers—the fact that these cars are being made on a factory "work order" dating back several months.

Since the "work order" went through materials have jumped in cost again. When the current "work order" is completed and if materials remain at their present level or rise higher, only one course will be possible, an increased price.

Those who have been driving Chalmers cars know how diligent has been the Chalmers effort to set down cars of the quality kind.

They will understand how impossible it would be for Chalmers to dodge the increase-in-materials issue and maintain the prevailing price on the 7-22 Chalmers.

Lower the quality of the Chalmers car? Never. The Chalmers men take great pride, not only in the money the car makes for them, but in the car itself. And pride, as everyone knows, is a thing that can never be compromised.

As long as there's a name "Chalmers", there will be a quality car, and as long as there's a quality car there'll be a price fixed—not by the Sales Department—but by cost accountants.

And there'll be a fair deal. Chalmers says these two 3400 r. p. m. models will be continued into next season. You can bank on that. So that a Chalmers car you might buy now will be exactly like the one you would buy next spring.

Remember the $70 you can save now by anticipating the rise in price. There's an old Scotch proverb that says "A dollar saved is a dollar earned". $70 buys a good suit of clothes, a good pair of shoes, a good hat and some good gloves. Also it just about pays your dues at the club for a year.

Or, if it's a 5-passenger 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers you want, our advice is to get one now.

We are not sure the price is going up and we are not sure that it isn't.

DODGERS AHEAD IN THIRD GAME

(By Frank G. Menke.)

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, Oct. 10.—Wintry winds swept across the field and into the stands this afternoon, chilling the 25,000 fans who "sat in" for the third world's series battle between the Dodgers and the Red Sox. The bright sun helped no one but the bleacherites, as the covered stands were backed to its rays.

The bleachers were filled to capacity soon after the gates opened but the reserved seat holders came later.

They didn't care to risk pneumonia. It was 1:30 before the grand stand began to be peopled to any extend.

This was the opener in Brooklyn, but the natives didn't seem wildly enthusiastic about it. The double beating suffered by the Dodgers in Boston seemed to have dampened the ardor of Brooklyn fandom. Or, maybe it was because they were frozen that they were not demonstrative. At any rate, pretty plays in fielding practice and smashing clouts in batting did not provoke much applause.

Reserved seats were on sale at the box offices here almost up to game time. This was a condition unique in world's series history. Never in the last six or eight years have any reserved seats been left for public sale before game time. The Dodger management announcement of a week ago was "All seats sold." Yet thousands were sold today. And this condition, by the way, gave the speculators another financial opportunity. Before the "Play ball" sounded at 2 p. m. they were selling their holdings at figures under the market price.

The Royal Rooters of Boston, headed by their band, put a little life into the festivities by parading around the field after their entrance at 1:30. The band played "Tessie" as a matter of custom and then banged out "A Hot Time." The Dodger musicians at once responded with a few stirring tunes.

The Sox and Dodgers were given only a mild cheer when they trotted onto the field. Both teams promptly set about thawing their frozen joints and their performances reflected much dash and spirit.

Both teams seemed keyed up to the highest point of perfection—and another real game was in prospect.

There was much speculation as to whether Everett Scott would be at short for the Red Sox. His left arm was hurt in the tenth inning of yesterday's frolic. He was under treatment of an osteopath this morning and seemed to be in normal condition during practice.

The question of pitchers wasn't answered by the rival managers until right up to game time. Carrigan had all his available regulars warming up before he made his selection. The line-up:

Second half—Myers was hit by pitched ball and went to first. Daubert got an infield single attempting to sacrifice, and Myers went to second. It was Daubert's first hit of the series. Stengel out on a sacrifice, Mays to Hobby. The play advanced Myers to third and Daubert to second. Wheat walked. It was an intentional pass and the bases were full. Cutshaw forced out Myers at the plate, Hobby to Thomas. It was a brilliant play. Mowrey fanned. No runs. One hit. No errors. Three left on bases.

Second Inning.

Lewis up. Before the second inning began all the $5 seats in the upper tier were empty. There were many vacancies in the boxes. Lewis out on a fly to Myers. Gardner out on a fly to Cutshaw. Scott flied to Wheat. Wheat made a remarkable running catch. No runs. No hits. No errors. None left.

Myers out on a sacrifice, Mays to Hobby, Coombs going to second. Daubert out, Scott to Hobby. One run, two hits, one error, one left.

Fifth Inning.

Lewis flied out to Wheat. Gardner out on fly to Mowrey. Scott out, Coombs to Daubert. No runs, no hits, no errors, none left.

Second Half—Stengel out on a fly to Gardner. Wheat walked. Cutshaw out, Mays to Hobby. Wheat went to second on the out. Mowrey up. Carrigan delayed the game with some sort of protest to O'Day but the crowd boo-ed him. Mowrey walked. Olson up, Wheat and Mowrey scored on Olson's triple. It went to center. The crowd went wild. Miller out Scott to Hobby. Two runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

Umpire Connolly stumbled over the bag running to first to watch the play on Miller. He took a header into the dust and rolled over and over while the crowd shrieked in merriment.

Sixth Inning.

Thomas out, Olson to Daubert. Henriksen (batting for Mays) walked. Hooper scored Henriksen on his triple to right center. Janvrin flied out to Cutshaw. Shorten singled, scoring Hooper. Hobby out, Coombs to Daubert. Two runs. Two hits. No errors. One left.

The production was in reality a laugh from beginning to end, which readily can be appreciated from the fact that the leading part was taken by Edward Garvie, who furnished most of the fun for "Twin Beds" when it was here last winter. He was immense, both as to avoirdupois and fun-making ability.

IS THE KINGSTON ONLY A MYTH?

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 10.—As a result of the mystery that has developed over the whereabouts of the crew of the British freighter Kingston which was reported to have been sunk by a German submarine and the absence of the vessel's name from shipping lists, a report became current in maritime circles here today that only five ships may have been destroyed instead of six. Doubt has arisen whether the name of the vessel is Kingston or Kingstonian.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Oct. 10.—Although price movements varied during the first fifteen minutes on the stock exchange today, the tone was strong and at the end of that period nearly all of the important issues showed substantial gains. There was a good demand for stocks at the start, but for a few minutes moderate liquidation occurred, due to the depletion of margin by yesterday's break. After the liquidation was absorbed higher prices were again in order. Among the price movements were American Sugar Refining which rose 3½ points to 116½. Cuba Cane Sugar, which advanced from 62½ to 64½, and gains of a point or more were made in Union Pacific, Reading, Steel Common and American Smelting. Anaconda rose 1½ to 93¼, and Utah 1⅝ to 92⅞. Inspiration sold at an advance of 1¼ to 65¼. Crucible Steel, after a reaction to 85, rose to 86⅝. Marine Pfd. opened up 1⅜ to 110, reacted to 108½, and then rose again to 110¾. Central Leather sold ex-dividend two per cent at 80, against 79½ at the close yesterday, with the dividend on. At the end of the first 15 minutes the general market was active and strong with a brisk upward movement in progress.

Trading continued orderly in the late forenoon, with many issues in good demand at advancing prices. The sugar shares as a group were the most prominent. American Sugar advancing to 117, a new high record for the year. American Beet Sugar and Cuba-Cane Sugar were also active and strong and made good gains. Utah Copper rose to 95¾ and further gains were made in many other copper stocks including Anaconda and Inspiration. The railway issues also shared in the upward movement, with Union Pacific, after selling at 146¾, jumping to 148⅝. Norfolk and Western rose 2¾ to 141¾. Many of the "war brides" were strong. Baldwin Locomotive rose 1⅝ to 85½. International Nickel 1½ to 52, and New York Air Brake advanced to 159½, a gain of 3½ points. Steel Common showed a gain of 1¾, selling at 113.

FALL ARMY WORM.

Causing Damage in West—Attacks Cultivated Crops—Control Measures.

[Prepared by United States department of agriculture.]

Reports from Oklahoma and Kansas indicate the injurious abundance of the fall army worm. This insect is a hairless, striped caterpillar, about an inch and a half in length. It attacks a great variety of cultivated crops, but is especially injurious to grass, corn, sorghum, Kaffir, millet and alfalfa. The worms can be controlled when found attacking these crops by adopting the following measures:

First. — Provide yourself with a spraying apparatus and keep on hand several pounds of some standard insecticide, such as arsenate of lead, arsenate of zinc or paris green.

Second.—Watch carefully the grass growing among the cultivated field crops in the bottom lands or in the low places of the fields, and upon the first indication of the presence of these caterpillars apply poison spray as recommended below.

Third.—In case of a general invasion after the caterpillars have gone down into the ground in order to change to the next stage, which is the pupa, many of them can be killed by cultivating the ground wherever this is possible.

Fourth.—When the caterpillars are on the march or are starting in on one corner of a field of grain they can be headed off by plowing a deep furrow directly in front of them. The larvae falling into this furrow can very readily be killed by dragging a log through it. Where the whole field is infested, plow a furrow around it so as to keep them out of the surrounding fields. Furrows should be kept free from rubbish so that the larvae will have no means of crossing to the farther side.

Fifth.—Grass and other vegetation that has no value may be sprayed with a mixture of paris green and water, two pounds to fifty gallons of water. However, this grass should not afterward be used for forage.

Growing grasses and other forage crops intended for use at a considerable later date should be sprayed with either one of the following mixtures:

(a) Arsenate of lead, powder form, one pound; water, fifty gallons.

(b) Arsenate of lead, paste form, two pounds; water, fifty gallons.

When corn is infested either one of the following poisonous mixtures may be applied:

(a) Arsenate of lead, powder form, two pounds, or paste form, 4 pounds; water, fifty gallons.

(b) Paris green, one pound; lime, freshly slaked, two pounds; water, fifty gallons.

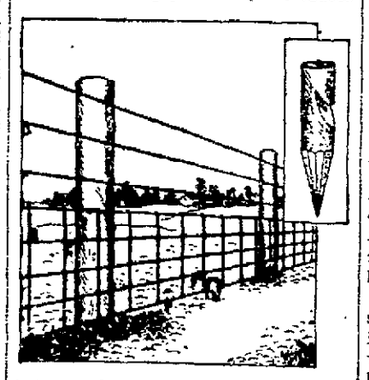

(c) Arsenate of zinc, one pound; lime, freshly slaked, one pound; water, fifty gallons.

Never use white arsenate on plants; it will burn them.

Sixth.—An immense amount of good also can be accomplished in the way of destroying these worms by the use of a poisoned bait which is scattered broadcast over the infested field. This mixture is made by taking fifty pounds of bran and mixing with it either one pound of paris green or two pounds of powdered lead arsenate, to which is added two gallons of low grade molasses and six finely chopped lemons. This is especially recommended for fields containing mixtures of grass and cowpeas, cowpeas and sorghum or fields in which grass has been consumed by the caterpillars.

Holding Down the Wire Fence.

Fences which inclose pastures for hogs or other smaller animals are usually stretched to give rigidity and strength. Often the adjustment of the wire after being put into place causes it to rise from the ground between the fenceposts, permitting the animals to escape. An effective method of holding the wire close to the ground is shown in the sketch. A peg notched near its upper end is driven into the ground so that the lower edge of the wire mesh is held in the notch.—Popular Mechanics.

Treating Cabbages.

It is not advisable to use arsenate of lead on well grown cabbages in the home garden. Hellebore, if fresh, is just as fatal to the cabbage worm and is safer to use because it soon loses its poisonous properties. Tobacco dust or soapsuds may be used in emergencies, and hot water at a temperature of 130 sprayed into the heads will kill the worms without hurting the cabbages. The common white butterflies seen flying about the garden all summer are responsible for the cabbage worm.

Eradicating Witch Grass.

Witch grass, which is the bane of many garden makers, can be wholly eradicated by the simple process of cultivating with a wheel hoe, or for that matter any hoe, twice a week. Once a week will not be sufficient, but once every three or four days will certainly kill it out. And all weeds can be dealt with more effectually now than earlier in the season, for much of their vitality has been expended.

Why Not?

Clerk—Now, see here, little girl, I can't spend the whole day showing you penny toys. Do you want the earth with a little red fence around it for 1 cent?

Little Girl—Let me see it.—Life.

The Brand of a Criminal

It Was Assumed Voluntarily by a Society Girl

By F. A. MITCHEL

Miss Wetmore, a middle aged spinster, was much interested in sociology. She was especially given to helping persons who had been convicted of crime, served their term in prison and been discharged. Her niece, Madge Ellison, a gay girl of twenty-one, made light of her aunt's efforts, having theories of her own on the subject. Madge had been to college; but, though a very bright scholar, her course was cut short by her being discovered in some prank which resulted in her expulsion.

Her own case illustrated her theory with regard to discharged prisoners. "I was born," she said, "with the Old Nick in me and must work out my own career in his service."

"Nonsense!" replied her aunt. "You were born to ease and comfort. Your silly prank, for which you were expelled from college, was the result of exuberance of youthful spirits. Criminals are usually driven into crime and, once in it, cannot get out of it. A discharged prisoner bears a brand that time cannot efface. No one will employ him, and he is driven to commit more crime to obtain the necessaries of life."

"I wonder," said Madge thoughtfully, "were I a discharged criminal if I could get on."

"Try it and see."

The words made an impression on Madge. "Try it and see!" The idea would not depart. She was really a girl of great depth. Had she not also been a girl of feeling she might have taken hold of some one of the women's questions of the day and made a hobby of it. She was rather fitted for a wife and mother, and the strength in her of this instinct prevented her from embracing any cause that would hold her undivided attention.

But "try it and see" would not down. Week after week passed, and a desire to test her ability to get on with the brand of a criminal upon her grew apace. Meanwhile she was devoting herself to society, finding it hollow hearted and the duties it involved tedious. Born for something more in keeping with an active brain and a sympathetic nature, she tired of people whose only object was to climb socially and maintain their position when they reached the top of the ladder.

"Aunt Isabel," she said one morning, "I've made up my mind."

"To what?"

"I'm going to 'try it and see.'"

"Try what and see?"

"I'm going to take on myself the brand of Cain, renounce for a season home, income—in short, everything except such belongings as are given a discharged prisoner—and see if I can make a living without committing more crime."

"You'll find it next to impossible. Even to make your living as you have been brought up would be difficult; to do so with a blight on you would be many times more so."

"Nevertheless I'm resolved."

"Very well; I'll help you to carry out your design."

Miss Wetmore took her niece to a prison where the aunt was well known to the warden and told him of Madge's plan. When Madge left the prison she was dressed as a woman of low degree and given the amount of funds usually granted discharged prisoners. At the prison gate she left her aunt with the words, "I shall try the experiment to the bitter end."

Miss Wetmore embraced her, spoke a few words of commendation and encouragement, and Madge found herself alone on a street in a great city with the voluntary brand of a criminal upon her.

In order to come as nearly as possible to the conditions of the test it had been arranged that if inquiries were made at the prison concerning her it should be said that she had been sent up for theft and no more information should be given. One advantage that a real discharged prisoner would have in a possible passing of time without her record being discovered Madge found it expedient to take upon herself. She was to confess that she had been in jail, but declare that she was innocent of the crime of which she had been convicted. This advantage and disadvantage Madge considered would offset each other.

She had not been taught anything by which to make a living, unless her education would serve that purpose. But for a confessed criminal to secure a position as teacher was hopeless. Even with a clear record Madge was without a degree. She knew nothing of the culinary art and could not fill the position of a cook. To be a housemaid required no great instruction, and this seemed to be the only field open to her.

Madge stood on the sidewalk before the prison till her aunt, with a thrown kiss, turned a corner. Then all of a sudden the voluntary jailbird felt a sinking of the heart that well nigh caused her to forego her experiment.

"Great heavens!" she said to herself. "Suppose I really were a discharged prisoner!"

For the first time in her life she realized the very great difference in the social status in which she was born from that of the grades from which most criminals are produced. A dirty newsboy five or six years old passed her crying his papers. She had seen hundreds of them and had thought no more of any of them than a dog pulling a huckster's wagon. Now this little fellow made her heart ache. While she had been at birth placed in a satin lined bassinet, this boy had likely been placed on dirty cotton bedclothing, odoriferous and squalid. She had sat, [illegible] of a class of [illegible] dren, singing kindergarten songs; he was at that age bruising a cold world selling newspapers. She remembered with something like shame that she had not even appreciated the advantages she had enjoyed at college—advantages that many a poor girl had wept bitter tears or because she could not make them the basis of earning an honorable living and which would have saved her from a life of toil.

But these thoughts served to bring out all there was of strength in Madge's nature. Drawing down the corners of her pretty mouth with a grim resolution she started down the street and on reaching a residential district rang the doorbell of the first respectable looking house she came to. A member of the family answered the call.

"Does the lady want a maid?" asked Madge.

"She's always wanting a maid. Maids are not plentiful nowadays."

Leaving Madge in the vestibule, the person went inside and returned with an invitation for the applicant to come in and see the lady. Madge found her in a luxurious boudoir. She seemed struck by Madge's refined features.

"Madam," Madge began, "I beg of you to employ me. I have been very unfortunate. Accused of a crime of which I am innocent, I have spent a year in prison. I have only this morning been discharged with enough money"—

The horror depicted on the woman's face was appalling to the applicant.

"I don't need any help at present," she said, looking hard at the door.

"I beg of you not to turn me away. I promise you"—

"Leave the house at once or I will call the police and have you put out."

Madge beat a hasty retreat.

Before making another application she resolved to try to gain a footing in the employer's good graces before confessing the brand upon her. She rang several bells in succession, to be told that no maid was wanted, one servant who answered her call shutting the door in her face without a reply.

When at last she struck a house where a maid was wanted and was admitted to the lady's presence, the interview was no longer than the first one. On being asked if she had a recommendation from the last person she had served she was forced to admit that she had not and was dismissed at once.

It was 10 o'clock when Madge had left the prison, and after three hours going from house to house in search of a position, she became faint rather than hungry and stepped into a restaurant of second grade that she had once been obliged to put up with for want of a better to get something to strengthen her. Taking a seat at a table, a waiter handed her a menu, but while she was looking to find the price of a cup of tea and a roll the proprietor stepped up to her and, with his eyes fixed meaningly on her coarse garb, said:

"Reckon you've got into the wrong place. There's a restaurant around the corner that would suit you better."

Madge arose and left the restaurant. Standing irresolutely on the sidewalk, she debated what she should do. If her experience thus far was so bitter what would it be when her little money with which she had provided herself had been spent? A policeman, seeing her standing thus forlorn, approached her and asked her where she belonged.

"Nowhere," replied Madge bitterly. "I have no home."

"Well," he replied to this, "I wish you'd get off my beat. I wouldn't like to run in a nice lookin' girl like you for vagrancy, but if you keep loiterin' about here I'll have to do so."

This capped the climax. Madge had tried her experiment of making a living with a brand upon her, and she was quite satisfied as to the disadvantages of such a situation. She was faint for want of food and had failed to obtain it even in a second class restaurant. She resolved to go home for a lunch and remain there.

"Call a cab," she said to the policeman.

"A cab!" was the astonished exclamation.

"Yes, a cab."

Madge showed him a half dollar. He whistled to a man nodding on the driver's seat of a taxi, who aroused himself and drove his conveyance to the curb before the vagrant. When she entered, giving the chauffeur her address, the policeman looked more amazed than ever. In a few moments she was driven to her own door.

"What," said Miss Wetmore, "home already?"

"Yes, Aunt Isabel. I'm satisfied as to the preliminaries. Now for the work in hand."

In a subsequent career of usefulness Madge Ellison found this practical experience as to the difficulties discharged prisoners meet on emerging again into the world with a brand upon them worth more to her than reading many volumes on the subject. It not only gave her information, but for every such person she helped she felt a heartfelt sympathy.

Instead of becoming a butterfly of fashion, as might have been expected from her wealth and social position, Madge became a worker in the cause of humanity, and in time her name was honored by the community in which she lived and loved by hundreds of those she had helped.

A Mighty Bridge.

$250,000 FIRE IN UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 10.—Fire, fanned by a high wind, virtually destroyed the main building of the University of Wisconsin with a loss estimated at $250,000 today.

Five hundred students warned by a fire alarm system installed just two months ago, marched out of the building in safety and assisted in saving the old records of the institution.

The building, erected shortly after the Civil War, stood on a hill facing the state capitol. It had two wings and housed the College of Science and letters, the offices of the president and other offices, the University Extension Bureau, and the records and annals.

An over-heated furnace is believed to have caused the fire.

St. John's Church Notes.

The first fall meeting of the Parish Aid Society of St. John's Church was held on Monday afternoon at the parish house and was well attended by the women of the church. The report of the treasurer, Mrs. De La Vergne, was read showing a small fund in the treasury. In the absence of the president of the Aid Society, Mrs. Williams Carter, presided. Only tentative plans were taken up by the ladies and the rector, the Rev. J. I. Blair Larned, looking to the annual supper and an entertainment. Full details will be announced through the press as soon as possible.

This evening the Kitkuit Club of the church will meet at the home of Mrs. Reed, 43 Crown street, at 7:30 o'clock. It will be an important meeting.

Miss Norman's Recital.

The piano recital to be given in Battin high school auditorium, Elizabeth, N. J., on Saturday, November 11, promises to be a decided musical success, says the Elizabeth Times. Miss Wanda L. Norman, the pianiste under whose direction the musicale is to be given, besides her solo playing, will accompany the two assisting artists, Oscar Wasserburger, and a singer whose name will be announced later. Miss Norman is a pupil of the late Rafael Joseffy and an able musician. Elizabeth music lovers will be well entertained at the recital, which promises to be well patronized.

Miss Norman is a niece of Mrs. Adam Hauck of this city and has many friends in Kingston.

The Hagiographa.

The Hagiographa is Greek for "sacred writings." The name covers 11 books—Ruth, Psalms, Job, Proverbs, Canticles, Lamentations, Ecclesiastes, Daniel, Esther, Ezra and Chronicles, to give them in the order in which they occur in the Jewish Talmud.

Word of Different Meanings.

A "rookie" is a man who is learning to be a soldier—the "raw recruit." The term is English. The word "rook" used to be used for a variety of things. A gambling den was a rook. So was a barracks. The frequenter of either became a "rookie."

Passed October 6, 1916.

The Board of Public Works of the city of Kingston do ordain as follows:

Resolved, that the sidewalks on both sides of Andrew street from Broadway to Mary's avenue be curbed, guttered and flagged in accordance with the grade of said street as heretofore established in the manner following:

The curb stones shall not be less than twenty inches in depth nor less than four inches in thickness, the gutter stones shall be fourteen inches in width and at least three inches in thickness. The curbstones shall be set to the established elevation and grade of the street and cut to curves of six feet radius at intersecting streets. The gutter stones shall be laid with a rising inclination of one inch from the curb line toward the center of the street, and so that the surface of the gutter stone shall be eight inches below the top of the curb.

The sidewalk shall be flagged with sound, smooth flagging stone five feet in width, and not less than three inches in thickness, and shall be laid with a rising inclination of one-quarter of an inch per foot from the curb line to the street line.

All curbing, guttering and flagging shall be embedded in sand or other equally good material free from clay. Such curbing, guttering and flagging shall be made and completed within thirty days after due service of notice upon the owner or occupant so to do, and if the work be not done and completed within the time above specified the expense of resetting missing grade stakes shall be paid by said owner or occupant and the Board of Public Works may have the curbing, guttering and flagging done at the expense of the delinquent owner or occupants.

Provided, however, that if any property owner so elects, concrete sidewalks and curb and gutter of approved construction satisfactory to the city engineer and of designated widths and depths as herein prescribed may be used in place and stead of bluestone.

This ordinance shall be published once in the official papers of the city, and a copy of said ordinance shall be served upon each of said owners or occupants, this section being intended to be such notice.

Resolved, That all ordinances or parts of ordinances inconsistent with the provisions of this ordinance are hereby repealed.

State of New York, County of Ulster, City of Kingston, ss.:

I, John J. Linson, assistant secretary of the Board of Public works of the city of Kingston, do hereby certify I have compared the foregoing ordinance with the original on file in the office of the Board of Public Works and that the same is a correct transcript therefrom and of the whole of said original.

JOHN J. LINSON,
Assistant Secretary Board of Public Works.

To Celebrate Chapter Day.

Wiltwyck Chapter, D. A. R., will celebrate October 16, Chapter Day with special exercises at the Chapter House at three o'clock in the afternoon. A short but exceedngly delightful musical program has been arranged, and the Countess von Krockow, formerly Miss Schoonmaker of Saugerties, will be the speaker of the afternoon. The meeting will be held in the assembly room, and all chapter members are privileged to invite one friend to accompany them. Light refreshments will be served after the conclusion of the program.

Soiskanishade Club.

The Soiskanishade Club met with Mrs. Bellanger at her home on John street on Monday afternoon. Mrs. Charles M. Turner had the first paper of the afternoon, her subject being "American Landscape Painters." Beginning with Thomas Doughty, who preceded Cole by some five years, Mrs. Turner gave a brief biographical sketch of the lives of Durant and Sargeant and of the Hudson river artists, McEntee, Whitridge, Kessett, Giffort and Innis, telling of their works and where their masterpieces had been exhibited and were now to be found. Mrs. Leighton had the second paper on "Early Pottery." The Indian pottery was described especially that of the Pueblo Indians in Mexico. An account was also given of the early industrial history of American pottery and it was brought to light that in many sanitoria convalescents were taught this work which later developed into a real art enterprise. Both papers were full of unusual interest and much information. Next Monday afternoon the club will meet with Miss Cloonan at her home, No. 98 Elmendorf street.

Sunshine Workers Busy.

There was a large and enthusiastic meeting of the Sunshine Society held on Monday afternoon at the home of the president, Mrs. W. Scott Gillespie. Because of her efforts on behalf of the Burger family, and for securing gifts amounting to $30, which was expended for cheer and comfort during the hot weather, Mrs. Gillespie was given a very hearty vote of thanks and appreciation. The society also helped raise the school tax for one family, thus saving their home to them. As this was the annual meeting, officers were elected as follows: President, Mrs. W. Scott Gillespie, who will now enter upon her eleventh year of devoted service, and who in the past ten years has missed but two meetings of the society; first vice-president, Mrs. Thomas Hickey; second vice-president, Mrs. U. S. Grant; secretary, Mrs. John Brodhead; treasurer, Mrs. Frank Merritt; collector of dues, Mrs. Webb. The following women were also chosen as chairmen of various active committees: Mrs. L. Updegraf, chairman of the visiting committee; Mrs. W. Scott Gillespie, chairman of the clothing committee; Mrs. Hyman Roosa, chairman of the entertainment committee.

In addition to the regular work of the society, it was decided to give a Sunshine tea in the near future. The next meeting of the Sunshine Society will be held on the afternoon of Monday, October 30th, at the home of Mrs. Grant.

The Coterie.

The first meeting of the Coterie for the 1916-1917 season was held on Saturday afternoon at the home of the president, Miss Belle Thompson. This year this club will make a study of "The Romance of American Cities." Saturday was devoted to an introduction to the subject matter. Mrs. Ellis having the first paper. Her subject was "The Lure of the City." Taking New York city as the most alluring American city, Mrs. Ellis vividly and interestingly pictured not only the attractiveness of this city to the pleasure lover and the man of affairs, but its magnetic drawing power for the scientist, the student, the music lover, the antiquarian and the lover of early American history. The paper was both informing and delightfully entertaining. Another excellent paper, as compelling in its interest, was on the topic "The Personality of American Cities," presented by Mrs. Charles R. O'Connor. Mrs. O'Connor credited the author, Mr. Hunkerford, who has written a book on the same subject, with much of the information she had to pass on to the club members. Mrs. O'Connor took three cities of unusual individuality, New York, Boston and Washington, D. C., and noted their particular characteristics and also contrasted them, thus showing their personality to be very real indeed. The afternoon's program also included a charming reading of a poem, "Romance in the City," given by Mrs. Patchin. Because of the regular general meeting of the Federation of Women's Clubs coming on October 21, the next meeting of the Coterie will be held on Friday afternoon, October 20, at the home of Miss Deudney on Broadway.

SETTLED OUT OF COURT

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Just at what hour and minute Deacon Bradley fell in love with the Widow Ludden has been preserved on the records. It was twenty minutes after 2 o'clock on a summer's day.

The deacon was a farmer and a widower, living about two miles from the village of Strongville. He had been a widower for three years and had no idea of falling in love and marrying again. His daughter, Martha, kept house for him.

The deacon was out mowing grass from the fence corner when his scythe blade struck a stone, and the point was broken off about six inches. When it was discovered what had taken place the deacon shouted out:

"Gosh all hemlock! But I went and broke my scythe, and I'll have to pay a dollar for a new one! I've got to get even with somebody to pay for this."

His daughter sat on the back steps in the shade, and she laughed at his words. When he returned to the house he was asked:

"Goin' to town to get a new blade, pap?"

"No, I hain't," he replied. "I'm goin' to town to ask the Widder Ludden to marry me."

"Awful sudden, isn't it?"

"Yes, pretty sudden."

The Widow Ludden was not wealthy, but she had enough to get along with. She was peeling potatoes at the kitchen door when she saw him drive up. She noticed that he looked rather spruce and wondered what business could have brought him there. She soon found out. The deacon came around the house, and after a few remarks about the dry weather and the tater bugs he blurted out:

"Widder, I hit a stone with the p'int of my scythe this afternoon and broke the darned old tool beyond repair. At the minute I hit the stone I thought of you. Rather curious, don't you think?"

"Yes, it was rather odd," replied the widow.

"I kinder took it that it was the hand of Providence. You see, widder, you are alone in the world, and so am I."

"Yes," sighed the widow.

"How much better it would be if we were together instead of apart!"

"Deacon Bradley, that sounds to me like an offer of marriage, but surely you don't mean it so?"

"Darned if I don't!" was the exclamation. She dropped a potato.

"Well," said the widow as she regained the potato, "you might as well get into your buggy and drive back home and forget all about the hand of Providence. I don't believe that Providence works that way."

"Wnal, maybe she don't," muttered the deacon, and he walked out to the street and climbed into his vehicle and rode off home.

When the deacon had called five or six times more the Widow Ludden spoke to the constable about it and complained that the deacon was annoying her. The constable warned the deacon to haul off the chase, but received the reply:

"I am doin' nothin' agin the law. I want to marry the widder, and I am doin' my best to win her."

At length he took to calling nights—that is, he walked up and down in front of the house and even in the garden. Of course, all this provoked gossip, and the widow got so angry about it that she had him brought before the justice of the peace for making a nuisance of himself. When the justice had heard both sides of the story he said:

"My friends, I don't like to make a court case out of this. Deacon Bradley, do you think it is fair to annoy Mrs. Ludden in this way?"

"Land o' love, jedge, but I wouldn't annoy her for the world!" was the reply. "Why, I'd have my right hand cut off afore I'd do any sich thing. She don't seem to understand how much I love her."

"Widow," said the judge as he turned to her, "Did the deacon ever court you?"

"No, sir," was the reply. "He came in slambang and said he ought to marry."

"He did, eh? That's no way to win a woman. If he had come courting in the regular way, as I and most men had to court, would you have looked upon him with more favor?"

The widow mused for a moment and then replied:

"He never even squoze my hand!"

"But I wanted to bad enough!" half shouted the deacon. "I wanted to squeeze and squeeze and squeeze, but I didn't have the spunk. If the widder will let me begin over agin"—

"Deacon Bradley," said the judge, "you are an honest, upright man. You are well off. You are lonely. The only trouble with you is that you don't know how to court a woman."

And then he turned to the widow and said:

"Widow Ludden, it seems that the deacon is a little slow, but I am satisfied that he loves you and will make you a good husband. Why don't you two try it all over again and see if you can't come out all right?"

The two left the judge's office in company, and that very night they began all over again, and in less than six weeks there was a wedding, and the justice said to himself:

"The law may be a mighty good thing, but common sense is a heap better."

FIGHTING AN ELEPHANT.

A Bishop's Story of an Exciting Experience in Africa.

The strongest opponents to the advance of civilization in west Central Africa, says Bishop Lambuth, the Methodist missionary, are the wild elephants. They break down fences, trample gardens, pull up trees and even telegraph poles, because they object to anything strange in their familiar haunts. One savage monster nearly wrecked a small steam launch belonging to the mission on the upper reaches of the Kongo.

The boat, with three white men, including the bishop, and a crew of five negroes, had tied up on the edge of a forest in a quiet bend of the river. A stout plank was laid as a gangway from the bow to the bank, and the crew worked until nightfall cutting and piling firewood for the boat's furnace. Then they came on deck for their evening meal. The three white men were already at dinner when a fearful yell from the natives brought them out of the cabin to see a large elephant viciously attacking the woodpile. The blacks went ashore with firebrands snatched out of the cook stove to drive the monster away. But he paid no attention to them until he had demolished the woodpile, when he whipped one man with his trunk heels over head into the river and chased the others back into the boat.

Thundering after, with red gullet open, tusks flashing and trunk flailing the air, he planted both tremendous fore feet on the gangplank. It bent until it cracked under his weight, but held stoutly, although the whole boat careened and seemed ready to capsize.

In another moment the elephant had crossed the plank and was astride it with hind feet on the shore and fore feet on the boat. There he stood, afraid to advance or retreat, a gigantic image of baffled rage. In his fury he began stamping with those great fore feet, and the boat rocked crazily back and forth.

What might have happened if the monster had come aboard with all his frenzied weight can only be imagined, for the captain by this time had fetched the only rifle on board and, risking all on one shot, had thrust the muzzle almost into the gaping mouth and pulled the trigger.

Fortunately the bullet lodged in the base of the brain. The elephant tumbled to his knees and into the water next the bank, his bulk thrusting the boat aside so suddenly that it snapped the bowlines and sent the men staggering to the gunwale.

At the next government trading post the captain had two splendid tusks to show as the result of his cool daring; but, to his astonishment, he was arrested for shooting the elephant without a license. It was with great difficulty that the government official was convinced that the animal had been shot in self defense. Even then he confiscated the ivory.—Youth's Companion.

Eccentricity of Genius.

Not a few famous men have been noted for their eccentricity of dress. Buffon, the naturalist, was particular, almost to ridiculousness, in his dress. It was his delight to dress in showy, costly material and to wear laces and jewels. He curled his hair with special attention and when at work wore it always in curlpapers.

ZEPPELIN AIR CRAFT.

Aluminum Girders and Hoops Like Those Monster Balloons.

The technical details in the construction of Zeppelin air craft are explained in a journal named the Aeroplane. The visible exterior part of the Zeppelin is merely the cloth or fabric covering of the framework, which consists of sixteen girders made of very thin aluminum. The girders run from end to end of the ship, parallel for most of their length and turning inward to meet one another at nose and tail. The cylindrical body of the Zeppelin may therefore be said to have sixteen sides on account of the sixteen girders.

To keep these longitudinal girders, or "stringers," in position there are thwartship girders, which are like hoops around the ship and act like the ribs of a boat. There are generally about eighteen hoop girders, spaced an equal distance, one from another, and they are braced across and across inside each hoop to the next by wire bracing, so that they cut up the whole skeleton into a succession of compartments, each of which—except the end compartments—has flat ends and sixteen sides.

In each of these compartments is a gas bag standing on its edge. The idea is that if one gas bag springs a leak or is punctured by a projectile only that one bag collapses, and the weighting of the ship is so arranged that even if four or five gas bags are entirely deflated those that remain will float the ship after all ballast, ammunition and other nonessentials have been thrown overboard.—London Standard.

KNEW TOO MUCH.

Tennyson's Father Had to Fly For His Life From Russia.

Shortly after the assassination of Emperor Paul of Russia, Tennyson, the father of the poet, dined with Lord St. Helens, the British ambassador, in Moscow. Several Russian officers of high rank whose names he did not know were also guests. During dinner a guarded reference was made to the emperor's death.

"Why do you speak so gingerly about a matter so notorious?" cried Tennyson impulsively, leaning across his neighbor, a Russian whose breast was covered with orders. "We know very well in England that the Emperor Paul was murdered. Count Zoboff knocked him down, and Bennigsen and Count Pahlen strangled him!"

There was a strained silence; then the ambassador abruptly changed the subject. As the guests filed out into an adjoining room Lord St. Helens drew Tennyson aside. "Don't go into the next room," he whispered, "but fly for your life. The man next you, across whose breast you leaned, was Count Pahlen, and Zoboff was also at the table."

He gave a few hurried directions, and Tennyson rushed off, threw his clothes into a portmanteau and fled behind fast horses to Odessa, still in evening garb, though the cold was intense. He lay hidden for weeks and at last, in the disguise of a servant, was smuggled on board an English frigate.

McCormack at his best

Hear this record!

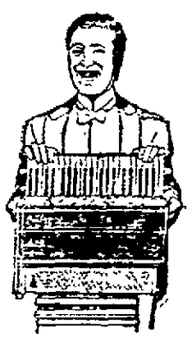

McCormack

The popular tenor's song this month is a "McCormack song" if ever there was one. "Then you'll Remember Me" is just the kind of sparkling, melodious, flowing air from which "our John" can win the last touch of beauty. Perhaps you remember the lovely air in the "Bohemian Girl."

"The world's champion accordionist" makes a new record

Pietro and his "accordion grand"

Customers are hereby warned that they acquire this record at their own risk, as it is likely to make their feet misbehave! Music-lovers long ago awarded Pietro the palm as an accordionist, and now they just sit back and let him have his way with them—that is, they sit back when he plays classical music. When he plays two ragtime numbers like this month's, there's no telling what may happen. You should have these two fox trot numbers, "Hello Hawaii, How Are You" and "By Heck!"

Victor Double-faced Record—18118—Ten-inch, 75 cents

"Favorite College Songs" and "Songs of Good Fellowship"

Two fine medleys sung by the Victor Male Chorus, which should have a wide appeal. The college songs are the older ones, almost folk-songs, familiar to every college man. The other collection consists of melodies more or less concerning "King Alcohol," but good old songs nevertheless.

MENKE'S DAILY SPORTING LETTER

(By Frank G Menke))

When "Babe" Ruth outlives his pitching usefulness he will find an outfielding job awaiting him Were it not that he is such a stellar twirler, Bill Carrigan probably would have converted him into a gardener this year to fill the Tris Speaker gap in the Red Sox ranks

Ruth is one of the greatest natural clubbers in the game Of powerful build, with a fine eye and ability to place his drives, he is a power on the offense There isn't a man on the Red Sox squad that an opposing pitcher dislikes more to face than this same Ruth He is the real pinch clubber of the team, the man who usually is called upon to exude a hit or a long sacrifice fly in an emergency

Ruth as a fielder is very good indeed He likes that branch of the game and works out chasing cloud tricklers whenever he can He is fast for so huge a man and has a grand throwing arm

A Tim Hurst Story

One of the stories the late Tim Hurst used to delight to tell was one in which he was something of the goat

Tim chased John McGraw from a game one day because he was using language that wasn't exactly 'pretty' After the game McGraw hunted up Tim

"Say you," he remarked "what would you do to me if I said this to you?"

And then McGraw rolled off a few names that can't be repeated in this family paper

McGraw" replied Tim 'if you ever said that to me I'd order you off the field and immediately after the game, I'd hunt you up and beat you to a pulp"

A week or so went by Then Hurst made a decision against the Giants on a close play Furious McGraw rushed at Hurst and began to upbraid him Hurst cautioned McGraw to be careful about his remarks or out we'll go"

And then McGraw hissed at Hurst Do you remember what I said to you the other night? Remember? Well, I'm thinking all that about you now I'm thinking it—and just as hard as I can You know what I mean—but you can't do a thing to me because I haven't said it to you on a ball field"

And McGraw, grinning walked away

'That Irishman beat me—and beat me good admitted Tim afterward I couldn't chase him, could I for just thinking'

Has Willard Earned $300 000?

Tom Jones who swore by all that was holy that Jess Willard didn't weigh more than 245 pounds two days before the Moran fight now claims that Willard has made $300 000 [illegible] Willard weighed 259 on the night of the fight Therefore how much has Willard actually made?

Tom may not be kidding the folks this time—but $300 000 is quite a bit of money Jess was supposed to have made from $1 000 to $1 200 a night last year while circusing Tom told us that Some one else said that $500 a night was a good average

But even if Jess did make what Tom says he has made don't get the impression gentle reader that Jess has a bankroll of $300 000 Nay Nay Jess gets only part of what he earns If Jess has $150 000 stowed away he's doing well

A'see Tom gets his bit from the earnings of the big boy It's generally believed that Tom gets 25 per cent Jack Cutler accounts, to report gets about 10 per cent For a while Lawrence Weber and Harry Frazee who financed the Havana affair got a divvy Willard later bought out their claim on him

However even if Tom was exaggerating a bit in naming $300 000 the fact cannot be disputed that Willard since he became champion has earned more over a stretch of 18 months than any other champion in history
